

24. Which of the following outlines a difference between labour productivity and multifactor productivity?
- (a) Multifactor productivity is easier to measure than labour productivity.
 - (b) New capital equipment will only increase multifactor productivity.
 - (c) Labour productivity is more closely related to workers' wages than multifactor productivity.
 - (d) Only multifactor productivity improves with technology.