

21. Which of the following is an example of a counter-cyclical demand-management policy?
- (a) an increase in transfer payments during a boom
 - (b) a decrease in the cash rate during a boom
 - (c) an increase in tax rates during a recession
 - (d) an increase in infrastructure spending during a recession